

SENATOR BEUTLER: I don't...there seems to be some confusion in your camp, Senator DeCamp.

SENATOR DECAMP: Not in my camp, I just...

SENATOR BEUTLER: I honestly believe that this amendment solves both our problems, but if you are not satisfied with that, you better think about it a little bit.

SENATOR DECAMP: Well, I would like to find out where we have agreement and disagreement because I don't want the abstracters or somebody else crying here next year that their bill was screwed up and that is why since you, Senator Beutler, are far more knowledgeable in this field than I am, I want to make sure that those who are knowledgeable from, so to speak, the adversary side, at least get their fair shot at getting in what they think is supposed to be. Is it agreed on now or not? Yes or no? Okay, Senator Beutler is agreeing to an amendment of his amendment. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT: Do you still want to keep the floor, Senator? Senator DeCamp has the floor. His time is running.

SENATOR DECAMP: Okay, Mr. President, I understand we now have an "agreement" and he is going to substitute a new amendment. Is that correct, Chris? Okay, so you are pulling the one amendment and you are substituting completely another amendment. Is that...yes.

CLERK: Senator, why don't I read...would that be helpful do you think?

SENATOR BEUTLER: Pardon me.

CLERK: I will read it and then everyone will know...

SENATOR BEUTLER: Yes.

CLERK: ...where we are at.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Are we withdrawing the previous amendment and now we have a new amendment before us, is that correct?

CLERK: That is correct.
